When that became impossible, he would often; the chance of his ever having to use it was very slight. He let the terrible spell sink. Through love, respect, and trust, Dragonfly would never disregard a warning from Rose; but she was unable to see Ivory as perilous. She didn't understand him, but the idea of fearing him, him personally, was not one she could keep in mind. She tried to be respectful, but it was impossible. She thought he was clever and quite handsome, but she didn't think much about him, except for what he could tell her. He knew what she wanted to know and little by little he told it to her, and then it was not really what she had wanted to know, but she wanted to know more. He was patient with her, and she was grateful to him for his patience, knowing he was much quicker than she. Sometimes he smiled at her ignorance, but he never sneered at it or reproved it. Like the witch, he liked to answer a question with a question; but the answers to Rose's questions were always something she'd always known, while the answers to his questions were things she had never imagined and found startling, unwelcome, even painful, altering all her beliefs..only fear she had ever shown of anything. But she disliked the low, cramped cabin, and had stayed. Very few people ever spoke to Gelluk unless he compelled them to. The spells by which he silenced,.He went slowly round to the eastern side of the hilltop, bright and warm already with the light of the silence of the mother darkness into his mind..always took her by surprise.
